ALL GREAT LEADERS HAVE A VISION...

The next important characteristic of great leaders is that they are able to derive a strategy to achieve their vision, which is actually the key to success. Then, they have the talent and skills, which they keep improvising through implementation and continuous learning. Great leaders are able to guide their organisation to a leadership position, change the destiny of a nation or even bring about reformation in the society. I don't think great leaders are born. It is their passion and desire to excel and bring about transformation in the prevailing environment that makes leaders emerge out of the ordinary.

THE BEST PEOPLE MANAGEMENT GURU...

...is Narayana Murthy. The way he commands respect and love from his colleagues and employees, is a joy to watch. I respect him for his vision, integrity, honesty and the way he has built his organisation in all fairness and that too, in today's times.

APTITUDE IS VERY IMPORTANT...

Even if a person is not equipped with technical skills, those can still be learnt over a period of time. As you start growing in an organisation, what matters eventually is a combination of leadership, skills and a positive attitude to excel.
